This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. THE EDITOR.

Quebec, February, 1863.

PREFACE.

In presenting the second edition of the CANADIAN PARLIAMENTARY COMPANION to the public, the editor is of opinion that hardly any preface is necessary. The table of contents and the opinions of the press on the first edition, (to be found in their proper places,) will suffice to give the reader an accurate idea of the utility and advantages of the compilation. If, however, anything additional were required in favor of the work, it may be found in the fact, that the newspaper press has, on many occasions, been obliged to make use of the information contained in its pages, (but the editor regrets to add often without the customary acknowledgment,) and in the many gratifying marks of approval and confidence bestowed upon it by many members of both Houses.

Many improvements have been made in this edition, and the editor trusts that they will be found to render the work still more useful not only to members of the Legislature but to the general public. Whilst alluding to these additions, he feels it incumbent on him to acknowledge the great benefit he has derived in that portion of the work purporting to give an explanation of Parliamentary terms, &c., from Mr. Benjamin's brochure "Short Lessons for M. P.s," a great portion of which having reference especially to Canada, the editor has quoted. He has also availed himself of the "English Parliamentary Companion," by Captain Dod. All the information, both with regard to the personal history and the political predilections of the members, has been obtained from the best sources—parties on both sides of the House have been consulted—and it is therefore reliable. No political bias has been shewn.

For information received, the acknowledgments of the editor are due and are tendered to Messrs. Thos. Hodgins, of Toronto; Capt. Dod, England; F. Vallerand, of Quebec; L. R. Fortier, Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, and to the Minister of Militia Affairs.

PART II.

EXPLANATION

Parliamentary Terms and Proceedings.

ADJOURNMENT.—See Interruption of the Sittings of Parliament.

AMENDMENT.—See Order.

AVOIDANCE OF A DECISION.—When a motion has been made, upon which the House is unwilling to come to a vote, there are certain formal modes of avoiding a decision, amongst which are "passing to the other orders of the day," or "moving the previous question." The former means that the House should—casting aside and taking no notice of the matter then before it—proceed to the other business appointed for that day; the latter, that a vote be previously taken as to the expediency of coming to any decision on the question raised. If "the previous question" be negatived as a matter of expediency, the motion to which it referred is only gotten rid of for the time, whereas a direct negative to the motion itself would be a proscription of it for the remainder of the session, as well as a denial of its principle. With respect to a Bill, moving that it "be read this day six months," or "this day three months," is a mode of throwing it out without coming to an express declaration against the principle of the measure.

BILLS (PRIVATE).—Private Bills are chiefly introduced to enable individuals or bodies corporate to undertake works o public utility, at their own risk, and chiefly for their own emolument and benefit; but there are other private bills which frequently come before Parliament, such as Bills for adjusting claims to property between individual claimants, and Bills relating to divorce, naturalization, &c., &c. The expenses of legislation in such matters must be paid by the parties seeking the relief; and certain d p sits, varying in amount, must be made before the measure can be taken up by the Private Bill Committee. All these Bills have to be read a second time, and then, if all the rules of the House have been complied with, they go to the Committee, and it is before this Committee that proper attention must be given by the parties interested. Individuals or companies may appear by Parliamentary Agents.

BILLS (PUBLIC).—A Bill is the draft or skeleton of a Statute. Any bill which the Legislative Council can originate (may be introduced and laid on the table by any individual member without the previous permission of the House; but in the Assembly, no bill can be brought in), unless a motion for leave be previously agreed to. Permission having been granted, a Committee is appointed to prepare the bill. It is then brought in and read a first time, without amendment or debate, and a day is appointed for the second reading, previously to which it is printed, and a copy furnished to each member. The bill, after the second reading, is referred to a Committee of the whole House, at the sittings of which its details, are considered, as its principles were at each of its several readings. Members are at liberty to discuss its principle at any of its stages, but no one is considered to have declared decisively in favour of its principle unless, by his vote he support its second reading. In Committee, the bill is debated clau e by clause, the blanks left for names, dates, nature and amount of penalties, &c. are filled up, and sometimes the bill is entirely new-modelled. The blanks, as they are called, which are usually filled up in italics, are agreed to without a question being put, unless a member should propose to alter them. The next proceeding is, that the Chairman of the Committee should make a report to the House of the changes that the bill has undergone, which he does, by presenting a copy of it to the Speaker in its altered form. The report of the Committee is agreed to without discussion, the bill is ordered to be printed, and it is then read a third time, when any further amendments can be made. If a new clause be added, it is called a rider. The last question but one is, that the "bill do pass;" after this nothing remains except to determine its title, which used to be a general one for all the acts passed in the Session, but in modern times distinct titles are used for each statute. During the progress of a bill the House may divide on the following questions: 1st, on the second reading; 2nd, that it be committed; 3rd, that the report of the committee be received; 4th, or that the bill be re-committed; 5th, that it be read a third time; 6th, that it do pass; 7th, the title of the bill. These are quite exclusive of any divisions in Committee, or any amendments, or of any clauses added to or expunged from the measure in or out of the Committee. Alterations are not usually proposed in a bill until after its principle has been disposed of on the second reading. Immediately after the passing of a bill, it is taken by a member to the bar of the Legislative Council desiring their concurrence, where it passes through the same forms as in the Assembly. If the bill be rejected, no further proceedings ensue. When the Legislative Council agree with the Assembly in the principle of the measure, but differ on matters of detail, a conference usually follows between members deputed from each House, who generally succeed in adjusting the difference; but if both Houses remain inflexible, the bill is dropped. The same proceedings are adopted mutatis mutandis when the bill originates in the Upper House. The bill having thus passed both Houses, remains with the Legislative Council, except in the case of a bill of supply, which is sent back to the Assembly, to be by them presented at the bar of the Legislative Council to the Representative of the Sovereign. The assent of the Crown is the final proceeding which converts a bill into an Act of Parliament. (See "Royal Assent.")

BUDGET (THE).—The Minister of Finance makes one general statement every year to the Legislative Assembly, the object of which is to present a comprehensive view of the financial condition of the Province. Sometimes there are preliminary, or supplemental, or occasional speeches; but the great general statement of the year has, for a long time past, been quaintly called "the Budget," from the French bougette, by a common figure of speech, putting the name of that which incloses, to signify the thing contained. The annual speech known by that appellation embraces a review of the income and expenditure of the past year, as compared with those of preceding years; remarks upon the financial prospects of the country; an exposition of the intended repeal, modifications, or imposition of taxes during the session; and a detail of the public expenditure during the current period, with its grounds of justification.

CABINET.—The government of a state or community is understood to signify the exercise of supreme authority, and includes the executive, the legislative, and the judicial powers; but in popular acceptation it means only the first of these, the higher and more immediate functions of which are exercised by the Cabinet, a select body in whom, for the time being, the whole of the royal authority is vested.

It is only since the system of Responsible Government has been adopted in this Province, that we have had a Cabinet of Ministers. Before this took place, those who advised the Executive, or Her Majesty's Representative, were called as they were in fact, and as they are still, Members of the Executive Council. They are here dignified by the same name as that by which they are acknowledged in the Parent State—they are called the Government, when the fact is that this word only applies to the three Estates, which constitute the Government; but we have come into the use of the term usually employed in England, and as such it will be best to use it. When speaking of the Government, the people understand the members of the Cabinet. The Cabinet in Canada is sometimes composed of ten, and sometimes of twelve members of the Administration—it being entirely optional with the Premier whether the two Solicitors General shall or shall not be members of the Executive Council. It includes all those who are bound to retire when a change of Ministry takes place. The Cabinet being more immediately responsible for the conduct of public affairs, their deliberations are always considered confidential, and are kept secret. Only such portions are communicated to Parliament and the public, as the public interest and efficiency of the service demand. The head of the Cabinet, who has been entrusted with its formation, is called "The Premier," but more properly "the head of Her Majesty's Provincial Government." The Cabinet, as it stands at present, comprises the following officers:—"The President of the Committees of the Executive Council;" "The Attorney General for Upper Canada;" "The Attorney General for Lower Canada;" "The Minister of Finance;" "The Commissioner of Crown Lands;" "The Provincial Secretary;" "The Receiver General;" "The Commissioner of Public Works;" "The Postmaster General;" "The Minister of Agriculture and Statistics;" "The Solicitor General for Upper Canada;" "The Solicitor General for Lower Canada."* The Cabinet or Administration usually resign when they have lost the confidence of the Assembly, or they may be dismissed by Her Majesty's representative, and either House can, by address to the Governor General, ask for the dismissal of his Cabinet or advisers. The members of the Cabinet, or Administration, are supposed to agree upon principles of policy and legislation, and are expected to cooperate in Parliament, upon all matters and questions not specifically agreed upon as "open questions." As yet we have no fixed office to be held by the Premier, and, under existing regulations, we are not likely to have.

* Up to March, 1862, when the office became elective, the Speaker of the Legislative Council, ex officio, held a seat at the board of the Executive Council.

CLERK OF THE CROWN IN CHANCERY.—The Clerk of the Crown in Chancery is by right an officer of both Houses of Parliament. His duties are to take charge of all the Poll Books and Election documents, to issue Writs of Election, &c., attend with those at the Bar when so ordered by the House, and at the closing of each session of Parliament to read aloud the title of each several Bill before receiving the Royal assent by Her Majesty's Representative. As it may be interesting to many, we reproduce from Macqueen's Appellate Jurisdiction of the House of Lords, that portion which refers to the duties of this officer :—

IN ENGLAND :

"The duties of the Clerk of the Crown do not now, as heretofore, require his constant attendance in the House of Lords. He assists when the Royal assent is given to Bills ; but has no concern with the business of the Appellate Jurisdiction. In an ancient manuscript, preserved in the office of the Clerk of the Crown, the following particulars are given respecting this ancient officer : 'The Clerk of the Crown sitteth in the Upper House of Parliament, by the Clerk of that Court, upon the Woolsack, attending there all the Parliament, and is sometimes sent on messages to the Lower House ; and on the last day of the Parliament he readeth the Acts, and the Clerk of the Parliament giveth the King's answer ; where it is to be noted that all the time of Parliament he sitteth on the right hand of the Clerk of Parliament, and when he readeth the Acts, he standeth on his left hand, which is the higher place, being on the King's right hand.'"

CLERK OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.—"The Clerk of the House of Assembly" holds an office of great trust and importance. He, with two assistants, sits at the upper end of the table. The Crown appoints him by commission, and he appoints a deputy. It is his duty to make minutes, not of the arguments held in the House, but of the decisions at which it arrives—in other words, to record its votes, resolutions, addresses, orders, reports, divisions, and all other proceedings in which it may be engaged ; to see that they are correctly printed and distributed to the members ; to read aloud all such documents as the House may order to be read ; to perform the duty (without taking the chair) of president or moderator during the choice of a Speaker, putting a question and directing a division in the same manner that a chairman would do.

COMMITTALS.—In common with courts of law and equity, the Houses of Parliament can punish all contempts of their authority or disobedience of their mandates. Each House is armed with power to repress any aggression committed upon its rights, or any interference with its privileges; but in the case of the Assembly the operation of this power is limited to the session of Parliament; committals by that House being invalidated by a prorogation. Either House can delegate to a Committee the power of sending for papers and records, and of enforcing the attendance of necessary witnesses.

COMMITTEES—Are, first those of the whole House, which may be to consider certain Resolutions, as to the nature of which considerable latitude prevails; or the House resolves itself into such Committee, to consider the details of a Bill, the principle of which may be discussed at any or all of its other stages; or there may be Committees for financial purposes, as those of "Supply," or "Ways and Means" (which see). Secondly, There are Select Committees chosen by ballot or otherwise for some specific purpose—the number composing such bodies seldom exceeds fifteen members, except by permission of the House. Thirdly, Election Committees, which are judicial tribunals, appointed to try the merits of controverted elections. They are appointed by a General Committee on elections, who, after having selected a certain number from the members to constitute the chairman's panel, divide the remainder into panels, and report the same to the House, marked 1, 2 and 3. The Clerk, in the presence of the House, places the whole three in a hat and draws them forth, marking each in rotation, A, B, C. The General Committee then selects four members for the Committee for the first controverted Election referred to them, and at the same time the chairman's panel assembles and ballots for a chairman for the particular Committee chosen. Fourthly, Committees on private Bills (which see). When the whole House is in Committee, the Speaker vacates the Chair, the Mace is placed under the table, and some other Member is called on to preside, who sits in the seat of the senior Clerk.

CONFERENCE.—This is a species of negotiation between the two Houses of Parliament, conducted by managers appointed on both sides, for the purpose of producing concurrence, in cases where mutual consent is necessary; or for the purpose of reconciling differences which may have arisen. If the conference be upon the subject of a bill depending between the two Houses, it must be demanded by that House which is in possession of the bill, at the time of asking the conference. It is the sole privilege of the Legislative Council to name the time and place for holding a conference, no matter by which House it may have been demanded. Reasons in writing for the course resolved to be taken, are usually furnished to the managers on both sides, in which case it is simply called "a conference." Should this proceeding fail, a "free conference" may be held, which gives an opportunity for the managers individually, and unrestrained by any precise form of argument, to urge such reasons as, in their judgment, may best tend to influence the House to which they are addressed. A free conference is usually demanded after two conferences have been holden without effect. After one free conference, none other but free conferences can be held touching the same subject.

CROWN.—In speaking of the Crown, the reader must here remember that the attributes and powers are exercised in this Province by a Representative—viz: the Governor General. Its attributes are:—

To give or refuse to Bills "the Royal Assent;" to cause the laws to be duly administered and executed; to act in behalf of the whole community in its intercourse with other countries;—(but the Representative of the Crown can neither declare war, nor conclude a peace; this power cannot be delegated); to direct the Naval and Military forces within he limit of his Administration; to administer the Public Revenue; to prorogue or dissolve Parliament. The Queen's Representative, in appearing for the Crown, represents the source of justice and mercy, confers office, honors, and emoluments; but in the same manner as the Monarch acts by Ministers who are amenable to the Imperial Parliament, so the Representative in this Province acts by Ministers who are responsible to the Provincial Parliament, and the choice of those Ministers is the only prerogative which can be constitutionally exercised without responsible advisers; but even in this, Parliament, or rather the People's Representatives, exercise the controlling power: for the appointment of such Ministers by the Crown's Representative can have no practical effect, unless it rests upon men whose characters and measures prove generally acceptable to the House.

ESTATE OF PARLIAMENT.—Parliament fully assembled, consists of the Monarch, or his Representative, the Upper House, and the Lower House. They are more frequently spoken of as the three branches of the Legislature. Neither House deliberates in the presence of the Queen's Representative, nor will either of them permit any allusion, in debate, to the opinions or sentiments entertained by him. The three branches taken together exercise none but legislative functions, and they must all consent, or no law can be passed. But they have separate functions as well. The Monarch, or Representative, holds the whole executive authority, and while the Lower House alone can originate Money or Tax Bills, the Upper House is deprived of this power. Nor does the Upper House possess the great function of trying impeachments, which is held by the Lords in Great Britain, from the simple fact, we presume, that there is no power invested with the right to impeach. But we will speak of each one separately.

House of Assembly.—The Speaker takes the chair at 3, P. M. daily. If there be a quorum, the business is proceeded with; if not, the House is adjourned till the next day, at 3, P. M. Early meetings take place at the close of the Session, in order to expedite business, and bring matters to a close. The House does not usually meet on Saturday, nor does it assemble on any holiday. No one can be admitted to hear the debates without an order from the Sergeant-at-Arms, which is generally obtained through a Member. Twenty Members constitute a quorum.

The Legislative Council.—The time for the ordinary meeting of this House is at three o'clock in the afternoon, unless some other time shall have previously been ordered. If a quorum is not present at thirty minutes after the time of meeting, the House is adjourned until the next sitting day. Ten members constitute a quorum.

Executive.—See Cabinet.

Finance.—See Budget.

Interruption of the Sittings of Parliament.—The proceedings of the Legislature may be interrupted or suspended either by adjournment, prorogation or dissolution.

Adjournment, as the term itself implies, is a postponement of the sittings or proceedings of the House, from one time to another specified for the re-assemblage. When the sittings of both Houses are interrupted by royal authority, it is called prorogation. Dissolution puts an end to the representative character of the individuals who, at the time, compose the House of Assembly, and Parliament cannot therefore assemble until after a new election, except in cases hereinafter mentioned. The power of adjournment is a right belonging to each House, and there are no restraints to this power.

The House of Assembly can interrupt or postpone any debate, defer the consideration of any measure, or altogether adjourn its sitting, but the practice is always to adjourn to some stated time; and we think there can be no doubt that, by the previous permission of the House, the Speaker can leave the Chair for a certain number of hours; but this does not amount to an adjournment, and could not be noted as such by the Clerk. But it must be remarked that the adjournment of one House does not adjourn the other. The Crown may, pending an adjournment, summon by proclamation, either House, or both, and may direct either, or both Houses, to adjourn to any particular day. But while this power exists, and although in former times it has been frequently exercised in the Imperial Legislature, it has grown into desuetude there, as well as in the Provinces enjoying the privileges of their own local Legislatures.

An individual member may for a time interrupt the progress of business by successive motions for adjournment, which may be repeated indefinitely, with this restriction: no second motion to adjourn can be made until after some intermediate proceeding shall have been had. The motion in committee that the chairman report progress, is equivalent to a motion to adjourn the debate.

Adjournment does not close the Session; nor does prorogation terminate Parliament. The former is an act which either House can perform: the latter is a power vested in the Crown, the duration of which may be subsequently shortened or extended as the Crown pleases. All unfinished business terminates and dies with a prorogation, but during an adjournment they remain in statu quo, to be revised on the re-assembling of Parliament. A member who moves the adjournment of a debate, or who is in possession of the floor at the time of the adjournment, is said to be in possession of the House, with the right to re-open the debate which has been interrupted. This is not the case, however, when Committees of the whole House adjourn. Prorogation never extends beyond forty days, but it may be repeated from time to time by proclamation, and continue to be renewed until it is intended that Parliament shall meet for the despatch of business. The Crown can summon Parliament at any time by giving fourteen days' notice. Dissolution is the simple death of Parliament, and may be brought about in two ways, either by the pleasure of the Crown, or by lapse of time for which it was called into existence. There was a time when the existence of a Parliament terminated by the demise of the Crown, but a special law removed this provision of the Constitution. But there is no power in the Constitution by which a Parliament in this Province can be extended beyond four years. If Parliament, at the time of the Sovereign's death, be separated by adjournment or prorogation, it must assemble immediately, or within a reasonable period. If no parliament be then in existence, the members of the last must again meet, and may serve as a parliament for six months, unless sooner prorogued.

LAW CLERK.—It is necessary to mention this officer in particular, because the Rules of the House assign to him and the translators certain duties which must be performed, to ensure correct Legislation. He is appointed by the Crown. It is laid down as the duty of the Law Clerk to revise all public Bills after their first reading, and to certify thereon that the same are correct; and in every subsequent stage of such Bills, the Law Clerk shall be responsible for the correctness of said Bills, should they be amended. The responsibility is increased by the fact of all Bills having to be printed in both languages, English and French, before they can be disposed of.

MINISTER (PRIME.)—See Cabinet.

MINISTRY.—See Cabinet: also Executive.

MONEY BILL.—See Supply: also Ways and Means.

ORDER.—By this word is meant an obedience to certain rules and regulations intended to facilitate the dispatch of business, and preserve that necessary decorum so essential in all deliberative assemblies. The Rules by which the business of Parliament is conducted are of two kinds; one class the House possesses in common with all deliberative assemblies—another is peculiar to its own existence and powers. For the proper application of all these rules, the Speaker's or Chairman's decision is had, and to this decision due deference is at all times paid. The Speaker, while in the Chair, takes no part in the debate, it being his duty to regulate the manner in which business shall be transacted; to confine those members who address the House to the subject under consideration; to give his opinion upon all things which relate to order; to put the matter in dispute into the form of a question upon which the votes of members are taken, and to declare the majority as soon as it is communicated to him by the Clerk.

It is also his duty to declare the business of the House closed, and to see that the affairs of the House are correctly and properly recorded. After routine, he calls upon the member whose motion stands first on the paper of notices, or who is otherwise entitled to precedence. All motions must be seconded, or they fall to the ground; being seconded, the motion is handed in writing to the Speaker, who has to read it before debate can be had upon it—having been read, objections may be urged. There are several ways by which a motion may be opposed; it may be met by a direct negative, or by an amendment, or by a motion to postpone, or by proceeding to the next order of the day, or by moving the previous question, or by the simple motion of adjournment. A motion once read cannot be withdrawn without the permission of the House. It must not be forgotten that unless a speech is made objecting to a motion, neither mover nor seconder can speak a second time, except in explanation. If, however, a debate does arise, in which an opposition is given to the mover of a motion, he has the right of reply; but it must be understood that this privilege does not belong to the mover of an amendment. All are permitted to explain. The debate being ended, the Speaker or Chairman puts the question, and calls upon those in favor to say "Yea," and those of a contrary opinion to say "Nay." He then declares that in his opinion the "Yeas" or the "Nays" (as the case may be) have it. If his decision is questioned, the House divides, the "Yeas" rising and their names being taking down; the "Nays" following; the numbers are counted from the record, and declared. When an amendment has been moved, the vote is simply taken on the amendment, and then on the original question. Should the amendment be adopted, it then becomes the substantive motion, and may be amended in the same way that the original motion was amended. Thus a number of successive amendments to the original motion may be disposed of. Any member is at liberty to interrupt another by "rising to order;" which means that he rises in his place, and calls the attention of the Chair and the House, to a breach of the orders then being committed. In the debate, it is contrary to order to mention any member by name; the same rule prevails in Committee of the Whole, except as regards the Chairman, who is sometimes called by his name, and not Mr. Chairman.

ORIGINATING BILLS.—All Bills relating to public income and expenditure, and all Bills usually called Money Bills, must originate in the Assembly, and be introduced by the Government. (See Bills.)

PARLIAMENTARY AGENTS.—In England all the business transacted for private Corporations and individuals, is attended to by what they call Parliamentary Agents, who are parties generally well up in the practice of Parliament, and who take off a great deal of the drudgery from Members. Parliamentary Agents are now employed in Canada, and they are a very useful class of men, being up to business, do not annoy the Members, nor neglect the interests they have in charge. As yet, there are but two or three engaged in the business, but when the Seat of Government becomes permanent, no doubt the number will increase.

PETITIONS.—There are several regulations which govern the presentation of Petitions to Parliament, which should be attended to by those who are interested. Petitions to the Assembly should be addressed to "The Honorable the Legislative Assembly of Canada, in Provincial Parliament assembled." The petition must be respectful, the statement of grievance or cause of complaint must there be set forth, and the whole must conclude with a specific prayer. Without a prayer to the petition, it would not be listened to, as the mere complaining for the sake of complaining will never be countenanced by Parliament, and the correct form is, after having alleged your complaint, to finish by connecting it with the prayer, beginning, "Wherefore your humble petitioner, &c., prays, &c.," setting forth the redress and relief that is sought. Signatures to petitions must be original; no agent should sign a petition to Parliament for any purpose. No chairman can sign for a public meeting, but the common seal of a corporation is received as the petition of the whole body. All petitions must be in respectful and temperate language; they should not animadvert upon the conduct of Parliament, the Courts of Justice, or constituted authorities. It is not proper to make reference to any motion, or subject under debate, or to a motion in the course of preparation. After presentation, all petitions undergo a close inspection in the Clerk's Department, and when the time comes for receiving them, the Speaker offers such remarks as their nature call for. In England there is a Committee on Public Petitions, which take this duty from Mr. Speaker, and it appears to work well, for they frequently find it their duty to report the substance, and frequently the exact words of a petition to the House, and not unfrequently recommend such action to be taken as the case suggests.

PREVIOUS QUESTIONS.—See AVOIDANCE OF A DECISION.

PRIVILEGES OF PARLIAMENT.—There are three kinds. 1st. The privileges which appertain to members individually. 2nd. Those which belong to the House in its collective capacity. 3rd. These which belong to the two Houses jointly.

It is unnecessary that we should here discuss the points of privilege which appertain to the two Imperial Houses conjointly on the subject of assuming the supreme power of the Realm. Amongst the privileges which the Assembly claims, are:—

The power of committing individuals to prison—the power of publishing matters which, if not issuing from such high authority, might become the subject of proceedings in a Court of Law,—the power of directing the Law Officers of the Crown to prosecute persons accused of offences against the laws, or affecting the privileges of Parliament,—and finally of doing anything not directly contravening an existing Act of Parliament, which may be necessary for the vindication and protection of its own rights, in the exercise of its own constitutional functions. Questions of privilege take precedence of all other proceedings, and are always in order. The privileges claimed by individual members are—freedom of speech and person, including freedom from legal arrests and seizure under procees from the Courts of Law and Equity. This does not extend to indictable offences or to actual contempts of the Courts of Justice. Members of Parliament are exempt from all duties, the performance of which might interfere with their prompt attendance to their Parliamentary calls. Privilege of Parliament, such as it is, continues for a convenient time after prorogation and dissolution.

PROROGATION.—See Interruption of the Sittings of Parliament.

QUESTION.—See Order.

ROYAL ASSENT.—The Act by which the Crown agrees to a Bill is called the Royal Assent; this assent is usually given at the end of a Session, unless there is urgent necessity for the Act becoming Law without loss of time, in which case the Governor General, or the person administering the Government, comes down to the Upper House, and there, in the presence of both Houses, gives his assent. When this is done, either at the close of the Session or on a special occasion, the Governor General being seated on the throne, the House of Assembly is summoned to the bar of the Upper House; being there, the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery reads the title of the Bill, and hands it to the Chief Clerk, who says in both English and French: "In the name of Her "Majesty the Queen, His Excellency the Governor General "sanctions this Bill," His Excellency specially manifests his assent to the Supply Bill. Bills to which the Royal assent is not given, are pronounced to be reserved for the signification of Her Majesty's pleasure thereon, and are mentioned in the "Official Gazette" as having been reserved for Her Majesty's consideration. Unless a reserve is made in the act itself, as soon as the Royal assent is given, the Act becomes a law, and can be proceeded on before any competent Court. In England, sometimes the Royal Assent is given by commission, but in a Province such an event has never taken place, although there can be no doubt that the Governor General has power to appoint a Commission to give this Royal Assent.

SERGEANT-AT-ARMS.—This officer, although in attendance on the House of Assembly, is appointed by the Crown. It is his duty to obey the commands of the House, to apprehend and take into custody all those who are committed for any offence by the House. All the messengers and servants of the House, except the Clerks, are under his orders. He has his seat at the Bar of the House, and directs all arrangements for the maintenance of order in the approaches to, or the galleries. He is of course in immediate attendance upon the Speaker, from whom he takes all orders, connected with his duties. He is assisted by a Deputy.

SESSION.—The Session is the term occupied by Parliament from its commencement to its prorogation. An adjournment does not close a Session. Parliament is annually assembled for the dispatch of business. There are certain important acts which are renewed every year, and without which the Government could not be carried on, which compel the government to meet the Representatives of the people, and render an account of the past year's transactions, once a year at least. Unless this be done, there will be no supplies. By an understanding, Parliament meets in the month of February, although circumstances sometimes arise to postpone the time. While the Crown has a right to summon Parliament where it pleases, it is generally understood that it assembles at the Seat of Government. The House being assembled, the Governor General commands the attendance of the Members of the Lower House at the Bar of the Upper House, and delivers a Speech from the Throne. This Speech is the first subject taken into consideration; no other business is commenced until the answer to it is given. As is stated elsewhere, the mere fact of one or both Houses adjourning, does not terminate the Session; it can only terminate by being prorogued by the Crown. All bills and other measures left unfinished, when the prorogation takes place, are dead, and parties who wish to revive them, must recommence their labours at the next Session, as if nothing had been done in the premises. The mere assembling of Members does not constitute a Session,—one Bill, at least, must pass both Houses, and receive the Royal Assent, before it can be called a Session.

SPEAKER.—Beyond all doubt this officer was designated Speaker, from the fact of his being the spokesman of the Commons, in their intercourse with the Crown. He is the presiding officer of the body. He reads all communications which come from the Queen's Representative to the Assembly; he has to present and read such addresses and petitions as are carried up to the Governor General by the whole House, and to deliver the usual speeches, on the part of the Assembly, when presenting the Supply Bill, and other Bills, calling for particular note and remark. Through him, all witnesses and prisoners at the Bar of the House are examined, and he directs all arrangements, when the House is to be addressed by Counsel. It is his duty to deliver the reprimand of the House to any one who has incurred the penalty of receiving it; it is also his duty to issue warrants of committal, or release for breach of privilege, to communicate with any parties, when so instructed by the House. It is his duty to closely examine the provisions of private Bills so as to protect the public against any surprise, or undue encroachment or injury; to control and regulate the conduct of subordinate officers of the House; to enforce the Rules of the House; he cannot join in any debate unless in Committee of the whole House. As the presiding officer of the House, he has all the duties attached to such an office. The Speaker is chosen by the members of Parliament, subject to the approbation of the representative of the Crown, and holds his office until the Parliament in which he is elected is dissolved. Should a member persevere in disobeying the order of the Speaker and of the House, the Speaker may "name him," as the term applies, a course uniformly followed by the censure of the House. In extreme cases, the Speaker may order members or others into custody, until the pleasure of the house be signified. On divisions, when the numbers happen to be equal, he gives the casting vote, but he never otherwise votes.

SUPPLY.—All proceedings which relate to the public income or expenditure, must originate with the Assembly, and must be begun by resolution moved in Committee of Supply, which is always a Committee of the whole House. In the course of the Session, estimates are submitted to a Committee of Supply; and resolutions moved thereon, granting to the Crown the sums requisite for the management of the various departments of the Government, and the support of various public and private institutions. Such as are confirmed by the Committee of Supply are reported to the House, where they are again reconsidered and adopted, or rejected, as the case may be. Upon these, a Bill is passed, and this Supply Bill furnishes the authority to the Government for disbursing the various sums appropriated. The Upper House may reject this or any other money Bill, but they cannot alter or amend the substance of a supply or money Bill; such a course would be regarded as an invasion of the Privileges of the Lower House. Before any Bill can be introduced, authorizing the expenditure of any public money, resolutions must be moved in Committee of Supply, agreed to there, reported and confirmed by the House.

THREE MONTHS (This day)—See Avoidance of a Decision.

WAYS AND MEANS.—As the Committee of Supply relates to the expenditure of the country, so the functions and duties of a Committee of Ways and Means have reference to the funds by which such expenditure is to be met. Loans, duties, taxes, excise and revenue of every description, are submitted to a Committee of Ways and Means. The propositions of Government on this subject are reduced to resolutions, submitted, considered and decided on, and such as are agreed to, are reported to the House. Those which may be adopted are embodied in a Bill or Bills, and in due course and form become the Law of the land. As in Supply, the Upper House may reject these Bills, but cannot amend them; nor can the Upper House insert a pecuniary penalty in any Bill.

OBITUARY.

May 15th.—WILLIAM BURNS LINDSAY, Esquire, Clerk of the Legislative Assembly.—Mr. Lindsay was born in Quebec, in 1796. His father, Mr. William Lindsay, was appointed Clerk of the House of Assembly of Lower Canada in 1808, and in that same year the subject of our notice entered the service of the House as a writer in his father's office. He was then employed only during the session, the amount of business before the Legislature being very different from what it now is; and soon after the establishment of the Bank of Montreal he became an officer of that institution, and eventually teller, obtaining leave of absence for the session and attending then to his duties in the Assembly. In 1829 he was appointed Clerk of the House in the place of his father, whose failing health compelled him to resign, and he then left the service of the Bank, in which he had earned and obtained the good will and esteem both of his employers and of their customers, the merchants of Quebec. Mr. Lindsay continued Clerk of the Assembly until the times of trouble and the suspension of the Constitution in 1837. Upon the organization of the Special Council for the affairs of Lower Canada, he was appointed clerk of that body, and retained the office until the Council itself ceased to exist, by virtue of the Proclamation uniting the two Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, on the 10th of February, 1841. When the Legislature of United Canada was at Kingston, Mr. Lindsay was appointed by Lord Sydenham, Clerk of the Legislative Assembly, and holding this office he died,—almost in harness; for, though then very unwell, he attended in his place in the House at the opening of the last session and for some time afterwards, and within a few days of his death he signed official papers.

As an efficient public officer, Mr. Lindsay was a very remarkable man. Without brilliant talents or acquirements, he was empathically the right man in the right place; forgot nothing and neglected nothing which it was his duty to think of and to do; and did every thing in time and well. Bred up among the fiercest political contentions, and in daily and hourly intercourse with men of the most opposite opinions, he never suffered himself to become a political partizan, or to show more favor or grant more facilities to one side than to the other. Feeling himself the servant of the whole House, he shewed equal courtesy to all; and therefore all parties alike bear equal testimony to his merits, and on this one point the House is unanimous. Among his subordinate officers of every degree, there is but one feeling,—they will never look upon his like again. They honored and respected him as the able head of the Department to which they belonged, but they loved him and lamented his loss as their best and kindest friend. Mr. Lindsay was a man of excellent constitution and active temperament. In the troubles of 1837 and '38, he commanded a most efficient volunteer artillery corps in Quebec, and when the Trent difficulty loomed darkly in the horizon, and our neighbours became most unneighborly in their threats, he joined the civil service rifle corps as an active member, and showed the same punctuality and attention in the drill room, and the same good example to the younger members of the service, which he had so often shown them in his office. He was then sixty-five, and it is by no means improbable that the exertion and exposure to which he thus subjected himself did but accelerate if they did not occasion the disease of which he died.

Mr. Lindsay had a very large family, and leaves a widow and ten children living. His eldest son succeeded him as Clerk of the Assembly—another is a Commander in the Royal Navy, and has distinguished himself in the service of his country. Mr. Lindsay died after a painful illness of about two months, during the earlier part of which he performed, as we have before stated, all the duties of his office: for with him duty was, in sickness as in health, always the foremost and most abiding thought. On the announcement of the death of their late Clerk, eloquent tributes to the great worth of the deceased were pronounced in the House of Assembly by the then Premier, Hon. Mr. Cartier, and many leading members. As a mark of respect to his memory, the House adjourned, and the members attended his funeral in a body.

July 6th.—MERRITT, Hon. WM. HAMILTON, J. P. [Niagara.]—Only s. of the late Thomas Merritt, Esq., U. E. loyalist of Westchester co., N. Y., a cornet in the "Queen's Rangers," who served during the Revolutionary war, and emigrated to New Brunswick in 1783, thence to Canada in 1796 by Mary Hamilton his wife.; he was Surveyor of Woods and Forests in 1800, a Major of Cavalry in 1812, and High Sheriff of the Niagara district from 1803 to 1820. B. at Westchester, N. Y 3rd July, 1793. Educated at Ancaster, C. W., and at Windsor College, N. S. Served in the embodied Militia during the war of 1812. Can. Parliamentary Companion 1st Ed.

Sept. 25th.—Hon. Adam Fergusson was a native of Scotland, born four score years ago, and was known in his native country as the laird of "Woodhill." He lived for many years in the valley of Strathmore, where he was a sufficiently prominent member of the Whig party to move or second the nomination of one of its members for Parliament. He performed this service for a candidate who afterwards became the Marquis of Breadalbane, when he defeated Sir George Murray, in a contest for the representation of Perthshire. Mr. Ferguson was distinguished for his efforts to improve Scottish Agriculture; and was a prominent member of the Highland Society. It was in 1831 that he came to Canada. A few years after he wrote a book of travels in Canada and observations upon its agriculture, which—let us confess it—is one of the very few of the kind with which we are entirely unacquainted, and of the merits of which we do not presume to speak. After his arrival here, Mr. Ferguson purchased a considerable property; and continued till his death, in his favorite pursuit of agriculture, the condition of which he made the same efforts to improve as had distinguished him in Scotland. In 1839, he addressed to Sir George Arthur a letter, in which he developed a scheme of emigration and military defence of Canada. In that letter he speaks of the American Government as an utter failure. After the removal of the Reform party, under the despotism of the Metcalf administration, Mr. Fergusson was a prominent member of the Reform Association. A few years later, he was one of the Commissioners of inquiry into the state and management of the Provincial Penitentiary.

Mr. Fergusson never took a leading part in the Legislative Council; but he was an useful member, punctual and conscientious in the discharge of his duties. He was an honest and a good man. Of late the vigor of his intellect appeared to have declined; and with all the sagacity which age is supposed to bring, he allowed himself to be betrayed into taking a part in the Toronto Convention, from which the present Premier had the good sense and forecast to absent himself. Mr. Fergusson leaves a son who is a member of the Chamber, by right of election, in which he himself held a life seat. It will be generally felt that a useful and exemplary member of society has departed from among us.—Toronto Leader.

Oct.—Hon. ALEXANDER BARBEIL LAJOIE, the Member elect for L. C. division of DeLanaudière.
